

JULIAN PISTONE

Google leader turned social entrepreneur and authority on courage, co-founder of global impact network Cor:age, shaping legacies that matter

- Sought-after speaker at Fortune 500 companies, top business schools, and global leadership conferences like TEDx and LEAP, the world's most attended tech event, Julian underscores the transformative power of courage in work, leadership, and life.
- Survivor of two life-altering health battles, Julian champions embracing the awareness of death to embody greater intentionality, authenticity, and purpose
- Co-founder of Cor:age — a pioneering global impact network and retreat series for visionary makers, global leaders, philanthropists, scientists, social advocates, investors, and beyond, to catalyze positive change
- With two decades of corporate leadership, including 10 years at Google, and a foundation in Psychology and Buddhism, Julian empowers founders and leaders from McKinsey, the UN, IBM, Google, UBER, ABInbev, YPO, the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, and more, to live and lead with bravery and forge meaningful legacies
- Creator of Cor:age Journeys, a groundbreaking content series with National Geographic Explorer and award-winning filmmaker Juan Herrero, showcasing remarkable tales of human resilience and courage

Julian Pistone is a former sales leader at Google, an international speaker, board member, and advisor to Fortune 500 companies, including Unilever, Coca-Cola, GM, Mondelez, and GlaxoSmithKline. After triumphing over two chronic illnesses, including a severe spine injury and ME, a devastating neurological disease, Julian's journey through pain ignited a mission to infuse courage into the world.

Blending nearly two decades of global corporate experience with a background in Buddhism and transpersonal psychology, Julian empowers individuals and teams to build courage, clarify their legacy intentions, and determine how they want to be remembered. His confrontation with mortality, disability, and mental illness led him to co-found Cor:age, a global impact network and retreat series that unites visionary makers — from political leaders and business executives to philanthropists, social advocates, investors, world-renowned scientists, and creatives — to catalyze change towards a more sustainable world. Julian advocates for embracing the awareness of death to live and lead with greater intentionality, authenticity, and purpose. His speeches inspire leaders worldwide to thrive in constant disruption and consider the lasting impact of their actions on their organizations, communities, and future generations.

Alongside award-winning filmmaker and National Geographic Explorer Juan Herrero, Julian is the creator of Cor:age Journeys — a content series that embarks on a mission across civilizations to explore the anatomy of courage and the transformative power of adversity. Through raw conversations with remarkable individuals, he uncovers extraordinary stories of human resilience and hope.

Julian is a global citizen who divides his time between The Americas and Europe, and speaks English, German, Spanish, Italian, and French. He travels the world, delivering keynote speeches and interviewing some of humanity's bravest individuals, reminding us all how our darkest moments can reveal our most profound bravery.
